Rutland Trains Discontinue All Passenger, Mail Service

For the last seven weeks passenger service on the 300 miles of Rutland Railroad track has been nonexistent as a result of a labor dispute and an unstable financial situation. Arthur A. Murray, general agent of the Middlebury office of the railroad does not foresee the renewal of this passenger service until the Rutland overcomes its deficit.

The strike began on June 26 when the non-operating employees demanded higher wages. On July 15 they returned to work and freight service was resumed. The passenger service was temporarily discontinued while the railroad attempted to balance its finances.

No Resumption

At this date the Railroad's treasury is still not stable enough for the resumption of passenger service. The agreement which precipitated the July 15 return gave the non-operators an increase of two and a half cents an hour retroactive to September 20, 1952. The passenger employees are on furlough until such time as passenger cars are run again. This can not be done

Perley Voter Dies In June

Professor Perley Voter, head of the chemistry department and a professor here for more than 40 years, died of a heart ailment on June 12, at the age of 63.

Professor Voter received his A. B. At Bowdoin, and his M. A. and Ph.D. at Harvard. He was a teaching fellow at Harvard from 1910 to 1912, and came to Middlebury in 1912. He is survived by his wife, a son, a daughter and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in Mead Chapel on June 15, at which President Stratton delivered the eulogy.

Stratton's Eulogy

"Many of you have known Professor longer than I. Some of you remember him as a young scholar come to us from his graduate work at Harvard University where he was a founder of the Alpha Chi Sigma Chemistry fraternity and where he gave instruction to James Conant, so recently become President Emeritus of Harvard Univer-

Liquor Store Divides Town

A proposed state liquor store has been the issue of prominence in Middlebury this summer. After a public hearing in the Middlebury Grange Hall Tuesday, Sept. 8, during which the college formally entered its opposition to a liquor store, the State Liquor Control Board deferred action.

Middlebury has been a dry town since Prohibition, but the number of wet voters has been steadily on the increase. A petition for the establishment of the store was signed by 500 resident taxpayers, 40 per cent of the voters, including some faculty and staff members. Thomas Langevin, president of the Merchants' Bureau, said during the hearing that, if the Board desired, another petition would be circulated from house to house and he was sure the number of signers would be doubled.

Proponents

The proponents argue that a liquor store here will save a 25 to 30 mile motor trip and help keep business in Middlebury. Establishment of the store would, according to the "Addison Independent," "not necessarily mean drunkenness and orgies in its wake. The stores close at 6 p.m. weekdays, a little later on Saturdays. Strict watch is maintained to prevent minors from buying and liquor is not sold to anyone visibly under the influence. Its business, as in other towns, will be primarily to those who desire a bottle or two to take home, to camp, or elsewhere."

The college originally voiced its protest through a letter to the "Independent" from President Samuel Stratton which said that it was "the direct policy of the trustees to oppose the sale of liquor in Middlebury." Dr. Stratton said that in some college towns the sale of liquor is banned at the request of the college, mentioning for instance, Dartmouth. He felt that the proximity of liquor would be too inviting.

Stephen Freeman, vice president of the college, said at the hearing attended by 250 residents, that everyone knows there is drinking in college dormitories and fraternities.

Appointments, Additions Released By Pres. Stratton

Appointments to executive positions on the faculty and 14 new faculty members were announced by President Samuel Stratton early this week.

John Bowker takes over as Dean of the Faculty for the coming year. Mr. Bowker, Baldwin professor of mathematics, replaces Raymond White, who retired last June. Mr. Bowker has also been appointed chairman of the science division.

Stephen Freeman, vice president of the college and professor of French, was selected to head the division of foreign languages, while Grant Harnest, associate professor of chemistry, was named new chairman of the chemistry department. This year's chairman of the music department will be Alan Carter, associate professor of music. John Valentine was named to the position of chairman of the psychology department. Mr. Valentine is an assistant professor of psychology and education.

Director of Placement and Assistant Director of Admissions for men will be Gordon Perine, while Alice Perine takes over as Alumnae Secretary. Jean Berger, assistant professor of music, will direct the college choir and Kevin O'Connor '53 will serve as assistant to the Dean of Men.

New Faculty

Among the newly appointed faculty members are Alan Gowans, assistant professor of fine arts. Dr. Gowans holds four degrees from the University of Toronto and Princeton, and comes to Middlebury from Rutgers.

Two new men were also added to the department of military science and tactics. Major Leo Dupont, who will be an assistant professor of military science and tactics, graduated from the University of New Hampshire in 1947. He will be executive officer of the college's ROTC unit. Captain Edward Hibbard, who graduated from West Point in 1944 will be an assistant professor and a lecturer in the department.

Biology

Robert Chute, instructor in biology, received his B. A. degree from the University of Maine, and

Two Receive Study Grants

Harold Hitchcock, associate professor of biology, and Stephen Jacobs, assistant professor of fine arts, were awarded Fulbright Fellowships for research projects in Europe, it was announced during the summer.

Dr. Hitchcock will leave for Wilhelmshaven, Germany early in February, returning to Middlebury next fall. While in Germany he will continue his study of homing pigeons, for which he received his grant.

Jacobs has left for Paris to study fundamentalism in architecture. He will be connected with the University of Paris. His fellowship covers the coming academic year.

ROTC Plans New Addition

The Board of Trustees authorized plans during the summer for a small addition to the back of the Field House for the ROTC department. The two story building will contain a five position rifle range, an armory and supply room, and offices for the faculty and staff.

The new unit will be of the same construction as the main building. The contractor will be chosen shortly and work is expected to begin next month, according to the announcement by F. Dudley Chaffee, superintendent of buildings and grounds.

During the past summer, work was completed on the Student Union Building. A new floor has been laid and considerable redecorating finished in the main hall and corridors.

The summer also saw the completion of work on the tennis courts. Laykold courts, now in use, are quick drying and should be available late in the fall and early in the spring. Only minor depressions should result due to the new surface.

Another summer project was the complete remodernization of the Hepburn kitchen. New drains and electrical equipment as well as a new floor are now ready for use. Some new equipment was also in-

Saturday Night To Be Middnite

Middlebury's 154th academic year began Sunday as 367 new students arrived to start orientation week. Of the new students 355 are freshmen. There are 12 transfers, ten women and two men.

The class of 1957 is composed of 146 women and 209 men. The new students are primarily from eastern states, with New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Vermont residents predominating. Also represented in the new student body are Canada, Austria, Brazil, Chile and Argentina.

Several new features highlight this year's orientation program.

Midd Nite will be attended by both the men and women of the freshman class instead of holding separate Midd Nite's for the two groups. Instead of the skits presented in former years, entertainment will consist of acts from previous Variety Shows. After Midd Nite, Mortar Board and Blue Key are sponsoring a dance for the new class.

Outing

The Mountain Club outing was held Tuesday at Bread Loaf instead of Saturday behind the Forests as in previous years. The freshmen paid for their transportation to the mountain.

Last year's plan of student advising was continued in the same manner, with 49 men and 20 women serving as advisers. The advising program is being directed by the SEPC.

Sunday the men received greetings from Blue Key, followed by individual visits of Blue Key members and proctors to their rooms. That evening the junior counsellors met with the new women students.

Placements

Monday, the English and French Placement tests were given, and the freshmen registered with the Directors of Admissions. There were also meetings with student and faculty advisers and the Freshman Convocation was held in Mead Chapel.

Tuesday the Mountain Club Outing at Breadloaf took place, followed by evening meetings of the MUA and the WUA.

More tests, the English qualifying exam and the Mathematics Placement tests were held, followed by an afternoon reception for the new class at the home of President and Mrs. Stratton. The IFC sponsored open houses at the fraternities that

Professor Voter

Shortly after Commencement last June, the college was saddened by the death of Professor Perley Voter, head of the chemistry department. For more than 40 years Professor Voter had been a mainstay of the faculty.

For those of us who did not know Professor Voter personally, the loss means a bit of Middlebury gone. We knew him only through his reputation which was fine indeed. For those who knew him personally, the loss is doubly great. His ability and his interest in young people have won him their respect throughout his career. He will always be remembered as a kind man with a generous gift for instruction.

Town Controversy

During August the town of Middlebury was heated by more than the summer sun. The furor began over a story which appeared in the August 7 issue of "The Addison Independent" stating that a college protest against a state liquor store in town had turned the Vermont Control Board against the proposal.

The following week, the local paper carried a letter signed "A Disgusted Taxpayer" which was succeeded by other letters from indignant town citizens. They accused the college of trying to run town affairs and they didn't like it. Much name calling passed over the boards before the issue was finally brought to a head by the Control Board at an open hearing held in Middlebury on September 8. Both sides of the issure were then fully aired and the final decision is now in the hands of the board.

Actually the loss of tempers was needless and the result of an erroneous impression given by "The Independent." There are many other reasons against the store which will probably influence the Board more than the college's letter. A major item is the expense of establishing a new store in town when it is not absolutely necessary. Furthermore the college was not dictating, but merely stating its policy which it had a perfect right to do. Certainly the college's stand is the one expected and should have been anticipated.

Interestingly the most important issue which came out of the tussle did not concern the liquor itself. Whether or not the store is established seems of minor interest in relationship to the storm it stirred. The real issue became the town against the college.

During the last two years this relationship has been quite harmonious. The installation of the Help Week project, the Women's Forum, and the way in which students have reacted to community problems have all drawn the town and the college closer together. The response to the November hurricane three years ago helped greatly to cement relations.

The summer squabble has more or less died down for the present, but it is obvious that there is still a great deal of work to be done toward uniting the college and the town. Although most of the disagreement centered around the policy of the Administration, there were several references made to the student body. Apparantly some Middlebury citizens still consider us irresponsible hedonists here for fun and frolic instead of an education.

There is also a feeling prevalent on campus that we are a separate entity from the town and that we are responsible only to ourselves. In reality we are two communities and the success of our college career relies on both. Many of us are living away from home for the first time and the experience gained in becoming responsible individuals is invaluable. By helping us acheive this goal, the town is contributing greatly to our education.

Although we may not realize the fact, we are readily identified and classed in a group when we arrive by the townspeople. It is up to us to emerge from that sameness and become individuals to them. Our conduct in their business and civic affairs molds their impression. Trying to cooperate with the town in an adult manner not only improves relationships, but aids the individual. The sooner the unpleasantness is wiped away the more all concerned will benefit.

New Addition

stalled. Work was completed Sunday in time for the opening of Freshmen Week.

The board track has been removed from the back of McCullough Gym and will be placed behind the Field House. The painting of the Field House is still underway.

The drafting department has been moved from Warner Science to the basement of Painter Hall. A room in Painter is now being readied for that purpose.

In the near future, the bleachers at Porter Field will be strengthened. Also, new fire escapes have been ordered for the Chemistry Building.

Alumnus Gives Eye Witness Account Of German Uprising

A report on conditions in Germany has been recieved by the CAMPUS from Horst Boog '50. Mr. Bog, a renowned dissenter during his days at Middlebury, is working for Air Intelligence and is planning on taking his doctorate at the University of Heidelberg by the end of next year. A friend of his participated in rise of the workers in East Germany against the Communists. It is this friend's eye witness account that Mr. Boog submits in a letter to CAMPUS readers.

The rioting began, according to the report, on June 17 at about 11:30 when the workers of the Ammendorf Railroad car plant arrived in Halle and relentlessly removed all Communist placards and banners. As the crowd cheered, two huge pictures of Pieck and Stalin were smashed to the ground and torn into pieces. Across the street the employees of the Communist State Bank, seeing the demonstrators, flung all the pictures of "our beloved leaders" out the windows. The Communist Socialist Party headquarters was taken after an assault and files thrown to the pavement and burned. The few People's Policemen in the streets had been stripped of their uniforms by the crowd. The chief of the State Security Service, was clubbed to death in the street in front of policemen and Soviet soldiers. He was thrown into a nearby canal and his head dipped under water with oars by some boys in a boat.

When Russian tanks appeared in the afternoon, bold men bombarded them with stones and tried to block the wheels. The report expresses surprise at the neutrality of the Soviets. Cars rode by with slogans of "Down with the government, we want free elections." Demonstrations lasted into the evening.

Strike leaders in the Leuna gasoline and Buna rubber works were arrested, and the workers continued striking to free their men. They succeeded and remained in a state of agitation for days afterward; when a Mr. Fred Oelsner attempted to "instruct" the workers he was shouted down and did not return. On July 16 the Buna workers struck again and remained on strike on July 18. According to the report from Mr. Boog the net result was that the "working men found out how mighty they are against the system of oppression and how effective they can be."

In another part of his letter, Mr. Boog reminisces about his life at Middlebury, stating that the Middlebury publicity facilities are helping a great deal in promoting international understanding. He liked hearing about the success of the Middlebury football team and skiers.

Rutland Trains

without the approval of the trustees of the railroad who are conferring sporadically in Rutland.

Not only are the students of Middlebury college suffering from the inactivity of the trains but people in all parts of Vermont have been affected as has the mail service. During the original strike mail was carried over emergency routes by bus and truck, and according to Postmaster George Huban these routes will be continued for the present. This plan has mail arriving in Middlebury at 6 a.m., 9 a.m., 12 noon, 4 p.m., and 5 p.m. The incoming mail has not been slowed to any great extent.

Drastic Effect

The strike itself had a drastic effect on Addison County. Trucks had to be used to ship coal, cement, grain, lumber and machinery and this involved more time, labor, and expense. The worst hit of the supplies to Middlebury was coal, but the settlement of the strike brought the economy of Addison County back to normal.

Also disturbed by the strike were the students at the Middlebury Summer School, many of whom had baggage caught behind the picket lines. College officials came to their rescue sending trucks to distant points to regain the baggage.

Citizens' Committee

A citizens' committee of representatives of areas affected by the strike thereupon attempted to settle it two weeks after it started but following two days of negotiation Albert Cree, president of the Central Vermont Public Service Corporation and chairman of the committee, announced its failure.

Now that the settlement has been reached between labor and management the chief sufferers are the mail and the users of the Rutland for passenger traveling.

Liquor Divides

nities, and at high school dances, but these are largely "beer parties." Establishment of a liquor store would tend to substitute hard liquor for beer. Middlebury is not a metropolis or a manufacturing center, but a residential town of great beauty and charm, and that establishment of a liquor store would be a step in the wrong direction.

Straight Points

Dr. Freeman said, "Let's get a few points straight. The Liquor Control Board will make the decision on the store, not the college. The college has a right to speak for itself; it did and then it kept quiet." He added it will not be necessary for the Liquor Control Board to decide the matter according to the majority opinion, since there are many things to be considered besides the selfish interests of a local group."

Dr. H. I. Slocum, osteopath, town moderator and chairman of the County Republican committee, wondered how much the merchants in Vergennes got after $231,000 went for a liquor store there.

Opinions

Affirmative opinions were that the college would have better control over its students if a store were located here; that many visitors when told at the information booth that the town had no liquor store, changed their minds after making arrangements to stay in Middlebury this summer; that business is now being lost to Brandon and Vergennes because of the tendency of persons to do their shopping while on a liquor buying trip; and that the ride back from places where liquor is obtainable had proved hazardous for undergraduates.

Egbert Hadley, chairman of the trustees of the college, read a prepared statement reflecting the thought of the Board of Trustees. It read in part: "The College thanks the (Liquor) Board for holding this hearing in Middlebury, and appreciates the opportunity to express an opinion on this matter. Middlebury College will support fully any decision reached by the Board in the interest of our community."

Sunday Chapel will be for freshmen and sophomores.

Voter

sity. You will recall too his enthusiastic and competent efforts in blazing the Long Trail over our Vermont Green Mountains. You know of the vigorous young leadership which has given to us a nationally recognized Department of Chemistry.

"It has been my privilege to have had Professor Voter as my colleague and true friend for ten years. I shall not speak of his deeply appreciated services as Chairman of the Division of Natural Sciences and Head of our Department of Chemistry. More personally I want to say that no matter how great our loss of a distinguished professor and administrator, our sorrow today is for the loss of a friend - a gentleman and a scholar in the old-fashioned and best sense of that phrase. Professor Voter had the innate courtesy which is the hallmark of a gentleman. It was a gentleness and a kindness that came from his heart. We shall never forget his spontaneous smile, his willingness to listen quietly to all viewpoints, his firmness when he arrived at his studied decisions. He was ever loyal to our college. The knowledge and the meaning of loyalty was inbred in him - family, country, students, his profession, our college. He always took his stand and we all knew where he stood.

"Whatever reputation a college achieves, its faculty is chiefly responsible for it. It is not buildings nor traditions nor even wealth that give distinction to a college. Colleges are founded, they grow, they survive all difficulties because of the devotion of a dedicated faculty who believe in young people and gladly teach them. Middlebury is a better college today because since 1912 Perley Conant Voter gladly, competently, and courteously dedicated his life to students, to his profession, to Middlebury College. We, who carry on now, pray that whether in difficulties or triuphs we may be guided by the modest, kindly, loyal, scholarly example of our cherished colleague."

Coaches At Full Strength As Guarnaccia Returns

By Ernie Lorch

In two weeks the Middlebury Panthers will open their 1953 football schedule against the powerful Wesleyan Cardinals. Once again leading the Panthers in the coming campaign will be a trio of skillfull coaches led by "Duke" Nelson and aids "Bobo" Sheehan and Sam Guarnaccia. For the coming campaign the coaching staff of the Panthers will again be at full strength with the return of line coach Guarnaccia after a year's absence directing the Middlebury Spanish School in Madrid.

Power For Power

Duke Nelson, well known to all of us as an exponent of the powerful single wing, will attempt to mold his more than forty man squad into an effective unit to give battle to the powerful elevens we will meet this fall. "The Duke" began coaching the Panther eleven in 1945 after several highly successful seasons with the Engineers of R. P. I. Nelson's most successful Middlebury Eleven was the team of 1948 which won all but its final contest. Last season the Panthers had a record of two wins against five losses but ended the season on a high note with a 19-13 win over the Catamounts of U. V. M.

Head mentor Walter "Duke" Nelson and backfield coach Bobo Sheehan look over the squad. With a new set up being instituted these two men, along with line coach Sam Guarnaccia, have a rough two week readying period ahead of them.

Coach Nelson, himself an alumnus of Middlebury, participated in six major sports before his graduation in 1932. Since his return to his alma mater he has coached the football, hockey, and golf teams besides teaching several courses in the Physical Education Department.

The Specialists

Nelson's chief assistants will again be Bobo Sheehan and Sam Guarnaccia who led the backfield and line respectively. Sam Guarnaccia will begin his second season as varsity line coach after several highly successful years of leading the Panther Cubs. Greatly overburdened last year by Guarnaccia's absence, the coaching staff has welcomed this personable ex-Midd star back to the coaching lines.

Sheehan, who is in his fifth season as backfield coach, has the job of training former defensive and offensive specialists to play both ways. This crew cut mentor supplements his duties as football coach by leading the Middlebury ski and baseball teams.

The main task of this year's coaching staff will be to rediscover that all but lost athlete, the sixty minute man. With the new substitution rules, grunts and groans can be heard coming from Porter Field where the Midd gridmen are in the process of serious conditioning and scrimmaging. Under the watchful eye and tutelage of these three fine football tacticians we can certainly expect the best posible from the 1953 edition of the Middlebury Panthers.

TV Cameras Feature Midd

"Football Kickoff 1953," an hour television program dedicated to college football, featured an eleven minute segment based on Middlebury College. The program was presented coast to coast Sunday evening by the National Broadcasting Company with Dave Garroway as M. C. for the telecast.

The Middlebury segment centered on Carey Smith '54, captain of the 1953 football team, and Valma Dwire of Middlebury. The program opened with Smith arriving at the train station. The scene then moved to the Field House for a sound sequence with Coach Nelson. Some scenes from past Middlebury games followed.

The cameras then shifted to the Middlebury academic scene. Smith and other students were shown in class with Walter Moyer, instructor of chemistry, and Erie Volkert, instructor of speech and drama. These classroom activities were followed by some Carnival ski shots at the Snow Bowl and a bike riding episode.

The next scene showed Smith and Miss Dwire at the Congregational Church in Middlebury. The closing minutes focused on the couple walking across campus to the Chapel. The view finally faded away with Smith standing on the Chapel steps.

Smith went to New York over the weekend to appear on the program in person. Middlebury music was used in the background.

Five staff writers and cameramen from NBC spent an inclement Labor Day weekend in Middlebury assembling material for the coverage. Rainy weather drove camera crews under beach umbrellas to protect their equipment and continue work. The final product was edited from the 3,000 feet of movie film which was shot.
